FACTUAL BACKGROUND

A. Daniel Defense and Its Marks.

8. Plaintiff is a manufacturer, distributor and seller of firearms and firearms accessories in the United States with product distribution throughout the world.

9. Plaintiff owns valid and enforceable trademark rights for its use on firearms and firearms accessories. In recognition of these rights, the United States Patent and Trademark Office (“USPTO”) has issued Plaintiff a number of registrations for its trademarks, including but not limited to:

| Trademark | Registration No. | Goods/Services |
|------------------------------|-------------------------|--|
| LIGHTER. STRONGER. BETTER... | 4,079,660 | Accessory parts for firearms, namely, mounting rail apparatus and mounting rails, firearm sling mounts, firearm optic mounts, firearm light mounts, and upper receivers for feeding and ejecting cartridges to firearms. |

|---|-----------|--|
|  | 4,469,889 | Firearms and firearms accessories, namely, complete rifles, upper and lower receivers, barrel assemblies, rifle rail systems, firearm vertical grips, firearm sights, firearm sling mounts, firearm ammunition, firearm flash brakes, firearm mounts for attaching accessories to firearms and firearm flash hiders. |
|---|-----------|--|

True and correct copies of the certificates of registration for trademarks are attached hereto as Exhibit A and Exhibit B. Plaintiff's "LIGHTER, STRONGER, BETTER... ®" and ">> ®" trademarks are hereinafter commonly referred to as the "Daniel Defense Trademarks".

10. Since and at least as early as 2006, Plaintiff has continuously and exclusively used LIGHTER. STRONGER. BETTER...® as a trademark in interstate commerce in connection with firearm core components (i.e., upper receiver) and firearms accessories. Plaintiff's LIGHTER. STRONGER. BETTER...® trademark is distinctive for goods of this type. Additionally, with over eight years of exclusive use of the mark in interstate commerce, Plaintiff has acquired yet further secondary meaning and valuable rights to the LIGHTER, STRONGER, BETTER... ® trademark.

11. Plaintiff owns federal trademark Registration No. 4,079,660, issued January 3, 2012, for LIGHTER, STRONGER, BETTER... ® (in standard characters) for use in connection with the goods: "accessory parts for firearms, namely, mounting rail apparatus and mounting rails, firearm sling mounts, firearm optic mounts, firearm light mounts, and upper receivers for feeding and ejecting cartridges to firearms".

12. Since and at least as early as 2012, Plaintiff has continuously used the design mark >> ® (Chevrons) as a trademark in interstate commerce in connection with firearms and firearms accessories. Plaintiff's >> ® (Chevrons) trademark is distinctive for goods of this type. As such, Plaintiff has additionally acquired valuable rights to this trademark.

13. Plaintiff owns federal trademark Registration No. 4,469,889, issued January 21, 2014, for the design mark >> ® (Chevrons) for use in connection with the goods of "firearms and firearms accessories, namely, complete rifles, upper and lower receivers, barrel assemblies, rifle rail systems, firearm vertical grips, firearm sights, firearm sling mounts, firearm ammunition, firearm flash brakes, firearm mounts for attaching accessories to firearms and firearm flash hiders".

14. Plaintiff uses its LIGHTER, STRONGER, BETTER... ® and >> ® trademarks throughout the United States, including this jurisdiction (the Southern District of Georgia Savannah Division).

15. Plaintiff has expended significant resources in the promoting, marketing and advertising of the Daniel Defense Trademarks and associated goods.

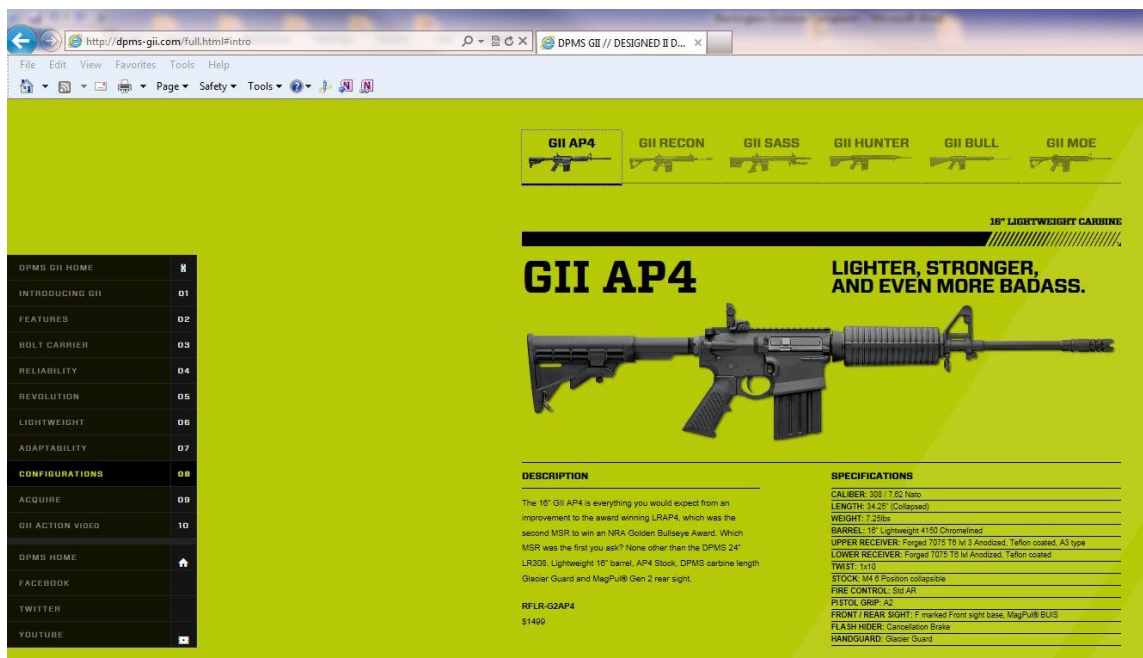

B. Defendants' Use of Daniel Defense Trademarks.

16. Defendants are in the firearms and firearms accessories manufacturing, sales and distribution business.

17. On information and belief, Defendants offer goods (i.e., firearms and firearms accessories) for sale within this jurisdiction.

18. Defendants have used marks that are confusingly similar marks to the Daniel Defense Trademarks on the DPMS Firearms/Panther Arms' website: <http://www.dpmsinc.com/>, thus creating customer confusion as to source of origin of its products.

19. Specifically, Defendants' infringing mark "LIGHTER, STRONGER, and even more badass." appropriates and uses the "dominant portion" of the Plaintiff's distinctive mark, does so wherein the infringing mark is predominantly shown in direct association with the sale of the same goods, in the same markets, and to the same class of customers as the Plaintiff. See, <http://dpms-gii.com/full.html#intro>. Moreover, the Defendants' company name is not predominantly shown anywhere on the website page, thus adding further to customer confusion. Please see, the following website example.

20. Additionally, the Defendants' infringing mark "LIGHTER, STRONGER and every bit as accurate as the original." uses "the dominant portion" of the Plaintiff's distinctive mark, and does so wherein the infringing mark is predominantly shown in direct association with the sale of the same goods, in the same markets, and to the same class of customers as Plaintiff. See, <http://dpms-gii.com/full.html#intro>. Moreover, the Defendants' company name is not predominantly shown anywhere on the page, thus adding further to customer confusion. Please see, the following website example.

21. On information and belief, the Defendants have also used the Daniel Defense Trademarks on marketing banners and marketing displays at various 2014 firearms and firearms accessories tradeshow (including, Shot Show 2014 in Las Vegas, Nevada), and thus creating yet additional customer confusion as to source of origin.

22. Defendants have used the Daniel Defense Trademarks on their advertising materials, including the 2014 DPMS online and print Product Catalog (available at: <http://www.dpmsinc.com/>) and thus creating yet more customer confusion as to source of origin.

23. In its 2014 online and print catalogues, Defendants' infringing mark "LIGHTER, STRONGER, and even more badass." appropriates and uses the "dominant portion" of the Plaintiff's distinctive mark, and does so wherein the infringing mark is predominantly shown in direct association with the sale of the same goods, in the same markets, and to the same class of customers as Plaintiff. Furthermore, in the same Catalogue picture, Defendants are also using a modified (upside down version) of Plaintiff's distinctive mark >> ® (Chevrons). Additionally, the Defendants' company name is not predominantly shown anywhere in the catalogue picture, thus adding further to customer confusion. Please see, the following website example.

24. In its 2014 online and print catalogues, Defendants' infringing mark "LIGHTER, STRONGER and every bit as accurate as the original." appropriates and uses the "dominant portion" of the Plaintiff's distinctive mark, and does so wherein the infringing mark is predominantly shown in direct association with the sale of the same goods, in the same markets, and to the same class of customers as Plaintiff. In the same Catalogue picture, Defendants are also using a modified (upside down version) of Plaintiff's distinctive mark >> ® (Chevrons). The Defendants' company name is not predominantly shown anywhere in the catalogue picture, thus adding further to customer confusion. Please see, the following website example.

25. Defendants' infringing mark "smaller. LIGHTER. STRONGER." appropriates and uses the dominant portion of the Plaintiff's distinctive mark, and does so wherein the infringing mark is "predominantly shown" in direct association with the sale of the same goods, in the same markets, and to the same class of customers as Plaintiff. Furthermore, the Defendants' are using modified chevrons "<<" similar to Plaintiff's distinctive mark >> ® (Chevrons) -- being predominantly shown in direct association with the sale of Defendants Firearm in its 2014 online and print catalogues. The Defendants' company name is not predominantly shown on the page and thus a reader cannot easily ascertain who the manufacturer of the firearm is. As such, a purchasing consumer is likely to be confused as to the source, origin or sponsorship of the firearm for sale. Please see, the following examples.

SMALLER. LIGHTER. STRONGER.

The heart of the GII is a matched pair of forged, level III anodized, Teflon® coated 7075 receivers, providing improved strength and durability.

THE RIFLE SIMPLY FEELS BETTER WHEN YOU PICK IT UP.

○ FORGED UPPER & LOWER RECEIVERS
Forged upper and lower receivers are contoured to be more ergonomic. Compact design is both lightweight and only 1/2" longer than a 5.56 AR receiver, 5/8" shorter than the current LR-308.

Lower receiver incorporates integral trigger guard and accepts any standard AR pistol grip.

⬡ IMPROVED BOLT AND BARREL EXTENSION
An all new bolt geometry provides superior lockup and strength. The bolt geometry allows a smaller diameter barrel extension to be used, in turn allowing the upper receiver to be smaller, reducing overall material and weight without compromising strength.

⬢ REDUCED MASS, FORGED, MONOLITHIC BOLT CARRIER WITH FORWARD ASSIST
New lightweight, forged, monolithic bolt carrier utilizes an integral gas key tower and removable gas key extension.

⬠ REDUCED WEIGHT, YET LIGHTER RECOIL
Reduced mass carrier provides smoother, softer recoil impulse than the GEN1 .308.

⬢ BEVELED MAG WELL
The beveled mag well aids in a quicker magazine insertion.

THE RESULT

WITH THE ADVANCEMENTS IN THE FORGING, FEED RAMPS AND BOLT GEOMETRY, THE GII HAS A SHORTER OVERALL RECEIVER LENGTH, AS WELL AS A REDUCED RECEIVER DIAMETER.

26. In the Defendants' online and print catalogue, Defendants have used Plaintiff's distinctive mark >> ® on firearms and firearms accessories. Please see, the following website
